Senior Airman Corey Clements 437th Communications Squadron

Senior Airman Corey Clements is a still photographic technician. He photographs a variety of base events and ceremonies, and provides security forces investigative photography. His photographs also often appear in the Airlift Dispatch.

Clements recently graduated Airman Leadership School with Class 99F. He won both the John Levitow Award and the Academic Achievement Award.

Originally from Black Ridge, Va., he joined the Air Force in July 1994 for travel and educational opportunities.

He's been stationed at Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C. and RAF Molesworth, England, before moving to Charleston in June 1999.

Clements plans to begin working on a Community College of the Air Force associate's degree in audio visual in January. He also plans to earn a degree in culinary arts. His long-term goals are to own a restaurant and a photography studio.

His hobbies include bowling, singing and cooking. He also enjoys attending church. "I get my values and principles from the Bible," he said. "I try to focus on the good in people."
